17th Security Forces Squadron selected as the ...

Air Force's TOP COPS

BY SENIOR AIRMAN BRYAN BOUCHARD
Public Affairs

The 17th Security Forces Squadron was named the Air Force's outstanding small security forces unit of the year Thursday.

The squadron, which earned the Air Education and Training Command's top honors in December, was visited by inspectors from the Air Force Directorate of Security Forces to evaluate the 17th SFS April 5.

The inspection was the deciding factor in the squadron's selection.

The members of the squadron are jubilant about getting the award.

"We've known our unit was the best," said Capt. Todd Ludeman, operations flight commander, "but finding out for sure is a great feeling."

Day of activities

Recognizing spouses' sacrifices

BY AIRMAN VINCENT TUFARIELLO JR.
Public Affairs

The 17th Support Group holds a special event in celebration of Spouses' Day May 14 at 6 p.m. at the Goodfellow Club.

The spouses of Goodfellow's military and civilian employees may take a tour of some of the base's facilities, get a chance to win door prizes, check out an information fair and have dinner.

Col. Gene Quintanilla, 17th SPTG commander will kick off the event when he welcomes the spouses at the club.

Spouses will take a look at the Norma Brown fire trainer at the Louis F. Garland Fire Academy and then the 1+1 dorm renovations.

Following the tours, there will be an information fair put together by the base's family support center in the club's ballroom. The fair will include presentations by the 17th Services Division, family support center, health and wellness center, SATO travel agency and TriCare office.

The last part of the event will be a special $10 two-for-one dinner for the spouses at 7:30 p.m. at the club.

Reservations for the event are required by Wednesday and people who arrange childcare with the child development center prior to this day will get half-price childcare for up to three hours.

For more information about Spouses' Day, to arrange for childcare or to make reservations, people may call Victoria Shaffer or Odessa Davidson at 4-3893.

Open house

Goodfellow welcomes community to May 15 event

BY AIRMAN VINCENT TUFARIELLO JR.
Public Affairs

Goodfellow's gates will open to the surrounding community when the base holds its open house in conjunction with Armed Forces Day May 15.

The purpose of the open house is to allow people from the community, who are not familiar with the base's operations, to see what military life is about and share in the celebration of the nation's defense, said Capt. John Enyeart, deputy director of Open House '99.

"It's important to never take our relationship with the downtown community for granted," Enyeart said. "We must facilitate it. Various organizations are given tours of the base throughout the year, but this is a chance for anyone to come out and see Goodfellow from the inside."

Several scheduled and ongoing activities will be held throughout the day at the base parade grounds, Louis F. Garland Fire Academy, heritage center, obstacle course and military working dog kennel.

There will be transportation available for people to get to these areas and the base's

Almost anyone can get small contracts

COMMANDER'S COLUMN

BY COL. GENE QUINTANILLA
17th Support Group
commander

Every year, the 17th Contracting Squadron scours the countryside for vendors to perform small contracts on base. With the right combination of talent, skill and interest, anyone can get one of these small contracts.

These contracts are different from the large contracts Goodfellow deals with. For instance, the renovation of the permanent party dorms, the landscaping on base and the custodial services require a large number of people, whereas these smaller projects only require one or two people to complete.

These smaller contracts give people a chance to earn some extra cash. For example, the chapel has service contracts for religious education coordinators, choir directors and a pianist; there are also two contracts at the base education office. Other contracts include aerobics and Aikido instructors, tax advisors, and refereeing all types of sports.

While these examples are only some of the services we make contracts for, there are others that are considered outside the "mainstream." For instance, there's a contract for cleaning the grease-traps at the dining facilities and club. There's another for inspecting ladders. Most of these jobs require specialized equipment and education and a pretty large material investment, but are contracted services nonetheless.

There are many opportunities to get one of these small contracts this year. For people who are interested, our contracting office can answer any questions interested people may have and be able to point prospective contractors in the right direction.

For more information, call Rosica Hooper at 4-5134.

Protect your things with renters insurance

BY SENIOR AIRMAN JENNIFER JOHNER
552nd Air Control Wing Public Affairs

TINKER AIR FORCE BASE, Okla. (AFPN) – During the past few weeks, I have had a crash course in learning how a fire can change your life. While my experience doesn't begin to compare to the tragedy faced by my neighbors, there are a few things I can pass on to help others when faced with the same situation.

After a regular Friday night on the town, my roommate and I arrived home to an awesome sight – at least three fire engines, and several police officers and firefighters scattered in the parking lot of our apartment complex.

The firefighters were busy rolling up the hoses and the police officers were trying to contain the situation. We weren't allowed to enter the apartment complex because it might have been our apartment that had caught fire.

As we rounded the corner we saw a large black hole where our neighbors' home once was. They lost everything. We just stared at

Congressional Awards: Active duty family members 13-24 can earn bronze, silver, gold medals

Active-duty family members ages 13-24 participating in the Congressional Award Program can earn bronze, silver or gold award medals.

Students can earn a Congressional Award by setting and completing goals in personal development, voluntary public service, physical fitness and expedition or exploration. While working to earn an award, young people realize their potential and value within society. This award is nonpartisan, voluntary and noncompetitive. Students move at their own paces and are honored for achieving their own challenging goals.

Each year Congressional Award Program participants in junior high or high school can compete for selection to travel abroad with People-to-People International through the James and Eunice Doty People-to-People/Congressional Award Scholarship. The scholarship advances international understanding through the direct exchange of ideas and experiences among people of different countries. In recent years recipients of this scholarship have traveled to South Africa, Australia, Russia and the British Isles. The scholarship includes all program fees and international and domestic airfares for a three-week exchange during the summer.

Students who earn the Congressional Award will automatically receive information on the scholarship program. Oct. 31 is the application deadline for travel during the summer of 2000.

For more information about the Congressional Award Program or the People-to-People/Congressional Award Scholarship, contact your base youth program director. More information on this program can also be found at www.afsv.af.mil/svp/svpac/SpecProj.htm or www.congressionalaward.org/congress/home.html.

Response Line

The Response Line provides people in the Goodfellow community with answers to their questions and concerns from Col. Toreaser Steele, 17th Training Wing commander, when all other means have failed. People should first try to handle their concern with the agency or organization involved before calling the Response Line. Items of importance to the entire base population appear here.

Problems heat up base sauna

March 8

Question: I use the gym every day and was wondering why the sauna has been out of order for almost six weeks. Can we get it fixed?

Answer: In the process of trying to get the sauna fixed at the Mathis Sports and Fitness Center, we lost a few weeks in the process while we figured out how to pay for the cost of repairs. The new heater for the sauna is now on order and will be installed when it gets in.

March 18

Question: I've noticed that in addition to the sauna, other equipment, to include weight machines, are also breaking and not getting fixed. In the past, I've borrowed tools from the gym staff and had to fix the problems myself. These are only three-minute repair it for a few minutes, trying to comprehend all that had happened.

The fire department informed us that no one was hurt, even our neighbors' dogs were all right. We had smoke damage, but the fire did not spread to our apartment.

That night, at a friend's house, we tried to make sense of the situation while we started planning our next move. We were amazed at how much things can change in a split second – a second before we saw the fire engines, our biggest concern was how tired we were and how we just wanted to go home. Suddenly, there we were trying to figure out our options and how to clean everything.

Thanks to a tip from the woman who showed me the apartment, I purchased renter's insurance when I first moved in. She told me that if a fire should occur, the apartment complex is only responsible for moving us – they are not responsible for replacing any damaged items or furniture. My neighbors, however, didn't have renter's insurance.

My guess is that not many people understand or know what renter's insurance is. When I talked to the fire investigator, he said that I was the only person he's talked to in a long time who has insurance.

Renter's insurance works like car insurance. Simply put, if there is an accident, such as a fire, you only pay your deductible and the insurance company takes care of cleaning costs and replacing damaged or lost items. It's not law that you carry renter's insurance, but it can save you a lot of trouble and money.

"Unless you can afford to replace everything in your home, you should carry renter's insurance," said Cheryl DeSpain, Military Family Housing management. "It's really a shame to see someone walk into my office (who) has lost everything and find out they didn't have renter's insurance," she added.

Another neighbor passed on a little tidbit I'd like to pass on to you. When you live in an apartment, you are trusting your neighbors with your life and your valuables. Be smart and have a back up plan in case an accident should happen. (Courtesy of Air Combat Command News Service)

the Crisis in Kosovo

Editor's note: The following column will be updated every week to provide readers with accurate information on the events surrounding NATO's Operation Allied Force.

BY SENIOR AIRMAN BRYAN BOUCHARD
Public Affairs

During the past week of NATO's Operation Allied Force, three American soldiers held captive in Yugoslavia were released after a month of captivity, the U.S. lost three more aircraft, and the U.S. welcomed refugees from war-torn Kosovo.

April 29

More U.S. aircraft head for Balkans

Secretary of Defense William Cohen signs an order to send 10 more B-52 Stratofortresses, two E-3 Sentry and one EC-130 aircraft to support the operation in Yugoslavia. The 13 additional aircraft fulfill part of NATO force commander Gen. Wesley Clark's request for 300 more aircraft.

Sortie tally keeps rising

NATO officials announce the number of NATO sorties flown since the beginning of the operation nears 12,000.

Pentagon authorities used this slide during a media briefing April 29. It shows the amount of sorties NATO aircraft have flown during the operation and what they were flown for.

Saturday

Rev. Jackson gets POWs' release

Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic agrees to release the three American prisoners to the Rev. Jesse Jackson. In return for the prisoners' release, Jackson says he'll plead with NATO officials to stop the bombing campaign for one day. NATO doesn't agree to halt bombings.

F-16 crashes, pilot rescued

An American F-16 crashes near Metic, Yugoslavia during a strike mission. The pilot is immediately rescued but the cause of the crash is unknown. This is the third U.S. aircraft lost since the beginning of the operation. The other two were the F-117 in the first week of the operation and the April 26 crash of an Army helicopter during a training exercise.

Harrier crashes into Adriatic

A U.S. Harrier jump-jet crashes into the Adriatic Sea while returning to the Navy's USS Kearsarge from a training mission. According to NATO spokesman Jamie Shea, the pilot was rescued immediately following the crash.

Sunday

Milosevic releases POWs

Milosevic releases the three American prisoners. Jackson safely escorts them to Ramstein Air Base, Germany and they appear to be in good health.

Monday

F-16CJ shoots down MiG-29

An American F-16CJ from the 31st Air Expeditionary Wing at Aviano Air Base, Italy, shoots down a Yugoslav MiG-29 Fulcrum near the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade after a NATO early-warning aircraft reported the hostile plane was airborne.

Tuesday

Oregon rescue wing to deploy

One hundred twenty people from the 939th Rescue Wing at Portland Air National Guard Base, Ore., prepare to join the 2,000 reservists and guardsmen already participating in the operation. The wing is one of a few rescue units to deploy to the area.

Wednesday

Two killed when Apache goes down

The pilot and gunner of a U.S. Army AH-64 Apache helicopter from Tirane Air Field, Albania, are killed when their helicopter goes down during a training mission about 60 miles north of the base. They became the first allied casualties in the operation. This is the second AH-64 to crash in two weeks, the last one occurred April 26 in an adjacent training area. The cause for both crashes is yet unknown.

Refugees go to New Jersey

Two-hundred Kosovar refugees arrive at Fort Dix Army Base, N.J., as part of the U.S.'s relief campaign. Officials state that literally hundreds of requests from American citizens have come in wanting to sponsor a family. The U.S. plans to house 20,000 refugees in various places as part of the humanitarian aid deal.

back to the fire school where the first bus will leave on its route around base. A bus will arrive at each stop about every 10 minutes.

Throughout the day, there will also be continuous displays of fire vehicles, intelligence imagery equipment and computer-based instruction in the fire school high bay.

The scheduled events for the different areas is:

Parade grounds

Pass in review – The first event of the day is the 17 Training Group's joint-service pass in review at 10 a.m. Representatives from the Air Force training squadrons as well as the base's soldiers, sailors and Marines will be on the field to march for the open house patrons.

Heritage center

Ribbon-cutting of base museum – The official ribbon-cutting for the Goodfellow Heritage Center is scheduled to be held at 10:45 a.m. at the center located in Bldg. 145. The heritage center is a base museum that houses various kinds of memorabilia from Goodfellow's past.

Fire school

Fire demonstration – A large-frame aircraft fire demonstration will be held at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the fire school pit area. People may have a chance to see fire school students in action during the 15-minute demonstration.

Rappelling – A 10-minute rappelling demonstration will be held at the fire school rescue tower at 11:30 a.m. and 1:20 p.m.

Concert – The Top Flight section of the Band of the West, an Air Education and Training command band out of Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, will perform for two hours at the fire school training pad starting at 11 a.m. The band performs classic rock 'n' roll music as well as songs from the current music scene. People may hear tunes from performers like Chuck Berry, Van Halen, The Beatles, Paula Cole, The Foo Fighters and many others.

Drill team presentation – Performances by the Lake View and Central High School Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps drill teams will be at the high bay from 11:50 a.m. to 12:10 p.m.

Auto extrication – After the drill teams' performance, there will be an auto extrication demonstration at the fire school's auto area at 12:20 p.m. and 1:40 p.m. The second auto extrication will be the last event of the day.

Obstacle course

Running the course – Some of the base's soldiers and Marines will run through the base obstacle course from 11 a.m. to noon.

MWD kennel

K-9 demonstration – The 17th Security Forces Squadron's MWD section will hold a K-9 demonstration near the MWD kennel from 12:40-12:50 p.m.

"We want to encourage all people, on and off base, to come and see the real Goodfellow," said Lt. Col. Tommy Garrett, 17th Training Group deputy commander and director of Open House '99. "From the MiG-29 to firefighter training, everyone will experience the center of excellence firsthand."

Commissary holds Diaper Derby '99

BY SENIOR AIRMAN BRYAN BOUCHARD
Public Affairs

The Goodfellow commissary holds its Diaper Derby May 21 at 10 a.m.

Contestants must be 12 months or younger and still be unable to walk.

"It's a crawling contest between babies," said Felix Salvato, commissary grocery manager, "whoever can crawl the fastest wins."

Prizes will be given away at the event and include:

- ◆ 6 cases of Luvs' Diapers
- ◆ $25 of Johnson and Johnson products
- ◆ $25 of Heinz products

People can register for the event any time from now until the event happens, he said.

"It's actually very exciting," Salvato said. "Mothers get down at the finish line and try to coax their kids down the course using bottles and pacifiers."

People can register their infants for the Diaper Derby in-person at the commissary.

For more information on the Diaper Derby, call 4-3357.

The feeling of pride in the squadron was felt from the top of the chain, down to the lowest ranking airmen, he said.

"It's great coming into a unit like this," said Airman 1st Class Abel Torres, an installation entry controller in the squadron who arrived to the unit April 23 fresh out of technical training. "Hopefully, we'll continue to be a cohesive unit and we can win it again next year."

Ludeman said only three units a year get to call themselves the best: the large, medium and small security forces units world-wide.

"We believe this award was due in part to the large mobility requirement we received,"

Ludeman said.

He said the 17th SFS was also the only security forces unit in the command to get an outstanding grade from the AETC Inspector General, he said. Plus the unit did all of this and more without the benefit of a fully staffed and manned crew. As a matter of fact, the 17th SFS was one of the lowest-manned units in the command.

"The Air Force will be challenged by various low-intensity conflicts and our operations tempo will remain high," Ludeman said. "This unit has strong leadership, morale and focus and will continue to meet the challenges we get."

"It's great coming into a unit like this. Hopefully, we'll continue to be a cohesive unit and we can win it (best small security forces squadron in the Air Force) again next year."

People can apply for CW certificates

People who served in the military during the Cold War from Sept. 2, 1945 to Dec. 26, 1991 are eligible to get Cold War Recognition Certificates from the Department of Defense.

Applicants must present proof of service, but original documents shouldn't be sent, because they can't be returned.

People can apply on the Internet at www.coldwar.army.mil or they can write to Cold War recognition, 4035 Ridge Top Road, Suite 400, Fairfax, Va. 22030, or contact their squadrons orderly room.

Retirees can apply by calling customer service at the 17th Military Personnel Flight at 4-3302.

AF publication available on Internet

Air Force Online News is now available on the Internet for anyone to view.

It's the first official newspaper of the Air Force and will be released on the Internet every Wednesday.

The online publication will address current events in the Air Force and can be found at www.af.mil/newspaper.

CDC needs bags for diaper disposal

The base child development center needs people to donate plastic shopping bags to the center.

The bags are used for diaper disposal. By donating bags, people can help the center save money, which can be used to buy additional supplies.

For more information, call Staff Sgt. Julie Cameron at 4-5216.

Three cadets to get commission

Three cadets from the Angelo State University Reserve Officer Training Corps Detachment 847 will be commissioned into the Air Force as second lieutenants May 14 at 10:30 a.m. at Old Fort Concho in San Angelo.

Darby Anable, Clint Fisher and Cody Whittington will be commissioned during the ceremony.

Everyone may attend and proper wear for the event is duty uniform.

For more information, call 942-2036.

Fact or fiction:

VA service officer dispels myths about benefits

BY AIRMAN VINCENT TUFARIELLO JR
Public Affairs

People who are eligible for veterans' benefits may be missing out on what they're entitled to, due to rumors, misconceptions or bad advice.

Thanks to all the myths floating around about veterans' benefits, people are liable to get ripped off unless they get the facts, said Scott Westfahl, assistant veterans service officer for Tom Green County.

Of all the stories Westfahl hears during a typical day at work, he said there are 10 that come up frequently. These are the Top 10 Myths about Veterans' Benefits:

10. "If I die on active duty, the government will take care of my wife and children."

This depends on a line of duty determination, Westfahl said. If the service member's death is not service connected, then the member's spouse and children aren't entitled to anything.

9. "I'm getting military retiree pay, so I'm not eligible to get money from the Veterans Association."

"People think, 'well, I'm retired and I'm getting money from the government, so I can't get anything else from the government,'" Westfahl said. "But people can get money through the VA that isn't taxed. If they're service-connected disabled and retired, they may get a disability check taken out of their retirement check."

8. "I contributed $100 per month to the Montgomery G.I. Bill, so I can go to college even if I don't get an honorable discharge or if I spend less than three years in the service."

To be eligible to use the G.I. Bill, veterans must be honorably discharged, Westfahl said.

"If you spend less than three years on active duty and get out on a less than honorable discharge, you just donated your $1200 to someone else," he said.

There are a few exceptions like a discharge because of a hardship or medical reasons, but even then a person will get a reduced benefit.

7. "I have to be injured in a war or be a prisoner of war to get service-connected disability benefits."

"We get people in here all the time who say something like, 'I have this bad back and it happened when I fell out of a jeep. But, it wasn't during a war, so it doesn't count,'" Westfahl said. "Wrong — Any injury or illness that happened or got worse while a person was on active duty counts."

6. "VA hospitals are dismal places filled with people who can't afford to see real doctors."

In the past, it took a long time for veterans to get healthcare through the VA, but all that has changed, Westfahl said.

"People still have the mindset that they don't want to have anything to do with VA health care because it's second rate and they'll be treated like animals," Westfahl said. "But it's really good stuff now."

5. "The VA pays dividends on the Servicemembers Group Life Insurance that I had on active duty."

This is true for coverage that was given during World War II, Westfahl said. Those veterans get a dividend every year and can take loans against it. SGLI, however, is term life insurance. This means no cash value and no loan value.

"If a person dies, they get the proceeds. Otherwise, oh well," Westfahl said.

4. "My 'general under honorable conditions' discharge is automatically upgraded to honorable after six months."

This is a common myth among young airmen, Westfahl said. It came about when supervisors used it as a tactic to get disobedient airmen out of the Air Force, but there's absolutely no truth in it.

3. "My discharge papers will automatically be recorded at the county courthouse and I can get copies whenever I need them."

People are told they have to file their discharge papers themselves during transition assistance briefings, Westfahl said. But many people forget to and assume the government does it for them. It's important to file discharge papers with a county courthouse because people need their discharge papers to re-enlist or participate in various government programs.

"If you're a veteran, you've got to prove it," Westfahl said.

2. "Because I'm a veteran, the government will pay for my funeral and burial when I die."

Westfahl thinks this myth was started because of a program that existed a long time ago. However, today the VA can only give a headstone and flag. Free burials for veterans are still available at national cemeteries that may be far away, in which case, family members of the deceased would have to pay to have the service member shipped.

1. "I know how to fill out forms." This is the single, most harmful misconception people have concerning veterans' benefits, Westfahl said.

"People can fill out the forms, but they don't know how to say what they want to say," Westfahl said.

There are a lot of "tricks of the trade" or key words and phrases that regional evaluators look for in forms, he said. If they don't see them, people can miss out on benefits they're eligible for.

All these myths are reasons why anyone who's less than a year from retirement or separation should visit the Veterans County Service Office at 111 W. Beauregard in San Angelo, Westfahl said.

"People in the office downtown can offer a lot of help to those getting out of the military," said Myles Miller,

MYLES MILLER

Base transition assistance specialist

base transition assistance program specialist at the family support center. "Many people don't know what they're entitled to and they'd be surprised to find out."

Members of the office, including Westfahl, can assist people in obtaining federal and state veterans' benefits they've earned through their military service. The service is free.

People who have questions about their benefits can call the downtown veterans' office at 659-6560.

Award-winning: Local ROTC cadets visit windy city, come home with four national-level accolades

BY CADET CODY WHITTINGTON
AFROTC Det. 847

Angelo State University Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps Detachment 847 cadets, from the Arnold Air Society's Robert G. Carr Squadron, recently earned four national-level awards for their outstanding service in 1998.

The Arnold Air Society is AFROTC's honor society which recognizes its members for outstanding academic and military performance.

The local squadron earned the Hagan Trophy as the best medium-sized squadron in the nation, won the best squadron in the nation for November of 1998, the LeMay-Ohio award for outstanding support of the local Air Force Association chapter and earned the award for the Arizona State University Cadet Squadron Commander of the Year.

The awards were the result of more than 1,200 hours of community service and included projects benefiting veterans, POW-MIA programs and various other volunteer events like the West Texas Boys Ranch.

The awards were presented in April at the AAS National Convention in Chicago.

Commi-'scary'

BY SENIOR AIRMAN RAYMOND GIULIANO
Public Affairs

Base commissaries are generally associated with military families and retired folks. At any given time of day, one glance around the commissary reveals mothers, fathers, children and higher-ranking older people milling around the aisles for things they need. Indeed, to a young, single troop looking in on this spectacle from the outside, it's easy to see how a "big" place like the commissary can seem scary and off-limits.

Despite this popular misconception, the base commissary is open to all military people, including students from all branches of service currently living in the dormitories.

"I never knew I could shop at the commissary," said Airman 1st Class Amanda Alder, a student in the 315th Training Squadron. "I always see people walking in and out of there (the commissary) wearing their civilian clothes, so I thought it was just for permanent party people."

But this isn't the case.

"We're here to serve them (the students) just as much as we're here to serve permanent party and retired people," said Anthony Longo, base commissary officer. "Whether you're an airman basic, a second lieutenant or a general; all are welcome."

"Now that I know I can use the commissary, I probably will," Alder said.

A few of the many advantages commissary shoppers enjoy are friendly service, a wide selection of items and competitive prices, he said.

In fact, the Defense Commissary Agency was voted the military's number one benefit in a recent poll by the commissary agency; beating out other benefits such as healthcare and housing.

The reason behind this is self-explanatory, Longo said.

"We offer only top-of-the-line name-brand items to our customers," he said. "And unlike many local markets, we carry only United States Department of Agriculture-approved choice meats. This means our customers are getting the best quality product for their dollar."

Longo said other features of the commissary include a full-size deli and bakery, a gourmet coffee section and an extensive frozen food department. Customers can have cakes made at the bakery for birthdays and special occasions, and fresh sub-sandwiches can be ordered at the deli for a fraction of what they cost at popular sandwich shops.

A product recently introduced into the commissary is the "home meal replacement," Longo said. The HMR is a series of meats, starches, and vegetables put into separate packages. When these packages are "mixed-and-matched," they make a fully-balanced meal. The HMR is different from standard "TV dinners," because the portions are considerably larger and more substantial.

"HMRs are ideal for single people, or for anyone who doesn't like to cook," Longo said. "You simply choose your meal, pop it in the oven and you're in business. It's an affordable way to enjoy a quality lunch or dinner."

Although most students use the dining facility, shoppette and fast food restaurants as their main source of nourishment, the commissary is a great way for them to try something new and cost-effective, Longo said.

"I always see young people running into the shoppette to buy milk, cereal, sandwich meats and other items," Longo said. "What they don't know is they can get most of these items at the commissary for considerably less money."

For some students, however, the commissary has never been a great mystery.

"I shopped there the whole five months I was going to school," said Airman 1st Class Amy Price, a recent graduate of the 316th TRS. "The prices were right, the employees were friendly and always willing to help, and the hours were always conducive to the shift. I worked."

The commissary also supports the base with special events, Longo said. For example, they held a Cinco de Mayo celebration in honor of the Mexican army's 1862 defeat of French invaders in Puebla.

The commissary will participate in the quarterly five-kilometer commander's run May 21, he added. During the event, a commissary representative will have a display where various health items including sport drinks, bottled water and nutrient-rich products will be displayed. From May 21 to 27, the commissary will hold a large sale for all military members and their dependents.

These events are just some of the things the commissary does for its military patrons.

A year ago, the commissary began operating on Sundays as part of a year-long trial basis to offer more convenient shopping times for customers, Longo said. The deal was, if business went well on the added day of operation, the commissary would remain open on Sundays.

"Because of the excellent support (we) received, along with the continual growth in Sunday sales, we've earned the opportunity to continue (the Sunday sales program) every week," he said.

According to the commissary's customers, it's this kind of support that truly makes it the military members' number one benefit.
